

Life Choices and Identify

- Career inventories can help people have a better understanding of what their job or career options are.
- These inventories and assessments are designed to measure someone's interests or skills, indicate personality preferences and identify work-related and life values.
- In most English-speaking countries, these tools are used by career guidance companies and even schools with the goal of helping people make successful career choices.

Business	Science	Social work	Arts	Crafts
Manager	Scientist	Psychologist	Songwriter	Woodworker
Sales analyst	Researcher	Social worker	Musician	Builder
Accountant	Doctor	Therapist	Painter	Carpenter
Sales director	Technician	School counselor	Fashion designer	Jewelry designer
Stockbroker	Biologist	Marriage counselor	Graphic designer	Blacksmith

Life Choices and Identify

Former President of The Unites States Bill Clinton talks about Career inventories:

“ I am heartened by your efforts to empower people to lead productive and fulfilling lives... (Success) will ultimately depend on the dedication and commitment of individuals who, like you, care deeply about helping people reach their creative and productive potential... this is the kind of effort our country needs...”. President Bill Clinton.

Think about this:

- Are most people happy with their job?
- What are you going to do?

